

Chapter 10 — Restrictions

litigation may not be paid with campaign funds. However, there are exceptions. Some expenses that may be paid with campaign funds include:

- Action to halt defamation;
- Defense of an action to halt defamation;
- Defense of an action for violation of state or local campaign, disclosure, or election laws;
- Litigation to secure a place on the ballot or challenge the wording of the ballot pamphlet;
- Contested election;
- Election recount; and
- Compliance expenses (for example, completing campaign disclosure reports).

A state candidate or officeholder who is subject to civil, criminal or administrative proceedings arising directly out of an election campaign, the electoral process or the performance of the officer's governmental activities, also may establish a separate controlled committee to defray attorney fees and other legal costs. (See Chapter 1.)

Reimbursements

If a bank account is required (see Chapter 5), the candidate must deposit personal funds in the campaign bank account and make expenditures from that account instead of spending personal funds for the campaign and later seeking reimbursement from campaign funds. However, any other individual may make expenses from personal funds and be reimbursed, as long as the expenses are incurred for political, legislative, or governmental purposes and repayment is made within 45 days. In addition, an officeholder may use personal funds and be reimbursed for "officeholder" expenses. (See Chapter 6 for specific reporting rules and deadlines for reimbursements.)

(Example) The candidate's spouse buys a roll of stamps for the campaign at the post office using a personal check. In addition, he frequently buys bagels for the morning shift of volunteer workers. After providing the treasurer with a receipt for the stamps and bagels, the treasurer may reimburse the spouse for his expenses.

Automobile Expenses

Lease or Purchase

When making payments associated with leasing, purchasing, or operating a vehicle, such as insurance, maintenance, and repairs, the campaign committee must be the lessee or hold title to the vehicle. Additional titleholders may not be the candidate, officeholder, treasurer, or any other person who may approve campaign expenditures, or a member of any such person's immediate family (spouse or registered domestic partner and dependent children). Additional lessees may not be the candidate, officeholder, treasurer, or a member of any of these persons' immediate family.

Reimbursed Automobile Expenses

An officeholder, candidate, or immediate family member, committee staff, and staff of an elected officer's governmental agency may be reimbursed by the committee for use of a personal vehicle if the use is directly related to a political, legislative, or governmental purpose. Documentation should be kept which includes the trip's purpose and mileage in a manner approved by the Internal Revenue Service for deducting mileage expenses. The rate for reimbursement may not exceed that allowed under Internal Revenue Code Section 162. For more details, the Internal Revenue Service may be contacted at (800) 829-1040 (www.irs.gov).

Ca Law is clear, a candidate or elected official MAY NOT use campaign funds to maintain or operate a personal vehicle.

The vehicle MUST be leased or owned by campaign committee.

lan Calderon's campaign filings show no expenditure related to a car lease or purchase
